

Interactive dashboards and reports that display insights such as top-selling products, sales trends, and customer preferences.

Top-Selling Products:

Top-selling products are the items, goods, or services that generate the highest sales revenue within a given time frame. These are the products that consistently perform well in terms of sales and contribute significantly to a company's revenue.

Sales Trends:

Sales trends refer to the patterns, fluctuations, and changes in a company's sales performance over a specified period. These trends can be short-term or long-term and may show increases, decreases, or stability in sales.

Customer Preferences:

Customer preferences represent the choices, likes, and dislikes of customers when it comes to products, services, or experiences. These preferences can encompass various aspects, including product features, pricing, brands, and more.
